The documents feature various charts, including bar graphs and line graphs, with labels like 'Medical', 'Travel', and 'Other'. A black calculator with a red 'C' button is prominent. A pen holder with several pens is visible in the background.

eSignatures and finance

Signable

Why finance needs eSigning...

Finance, whether focusing on giving or managing, is a sector that handles a lot of documents daily. Which means a lot of admin time sorting forms like these...

Accounting?

- ITR's
- CT 600's
- Agent authority

Giving?

- Applications
- Guarantor info
- Credit licenses

Vehicle finance?

- Credit licence
- Hire T.O.A
- DD forms & mandates

Debt management?

- Fee agreements
- Authority to act
- Bank authority
- Employment info

So, how do eSignatures help?

- No skim guarantee

Even the most experienced finance professionals have been guilty of skimming an important document. Signing without fully knowing the commitment involved. However, by adding initial fields next to the longer, more complex parts of contracts, you ensure parties have read and fully understood before signing.

- Compliance is key

Documents of a sensitive nature need to show compliance with key processes. By electronically sending documents, you can highlight exactly where signatures are needed whilst ensuring nothing is tampered with. This also ensures your documents are returned correct and remain readable.

- Cater to your clients schedules

Deals around finance are usually time sensitive. And as always when concerning money, clients are happier when things are finalised quickly. By using eSignatures clients can view, sign and send documents on-the-go via mobile, or at home. Catering to their schedule and cutting out the need for post runs/ office visits.

- Keep costs down

Reducing costs is a responsibility that's always in the front of a finance worker's mind. Adopting eSignatures ensures financial resources are being best utilised. By reducing both post/printing costs as well as staff time invested in projects. As eSignatures help projects by signing off contracts sooner. Reducing approval delays and time team would spend chasing signatures.

We're already helping these companies:

"We needed eSignature software and so we did a thorough comparison of all the options that were available. After assessing all the options, we decided that Signable was the best option for our business."
